OFF-CENTER@THE JONES PRESENTS DATE*

Multimedia show uploads to the Denver Center Theatre Company network this weekend

DENVER, April 19, 2012 – *Date is a new show based on writer and actress Luciann Lajoie’s own experience with finding love on the Internet. This multimedia, one-woman show runs April 20 through May 12 on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. at The Jones Theater in the Denver Performing Arts Complex.

Fairytales used to take place in far away kingdoms. Nowadays, “happily ever after” happens on the Internet. *Date explores this phenomenon and uses projected video throughout the show, making for a unique and revolutionary theatre experience that fits in with Off-Center@The Jones’ 2011-2012 lineup.

Off-Center@The Jones is a new division of Denver Center Theatre Company producing theatre that feels like a night out. Off-Center’s recipe for success is guided by five ingredients: immersive, convergent, connective, inventive, and now.

“Off-Center strives to re-invent theatre by incorporating more audience participation, less formality, and a hefty dose of unorthodox thinking,” Off-Center’s co-curator, Charlie Miller said. “We want to bring in the next generation of audiences who may not normally attend a traditional mainstage performance.”

The Jones Theater is located at the corner of Speer Boulevard and Arapahoe Street in downtown Denver. Tickets are $16. For more information, visit <http://www.datetheplay.com>.
